PREFACE

Knowing there are services available and where to go can save a lot of time for soldiers who have family members with special needs.

These special needs often present problems beyond the immediate resources of the family. Whether the problems are physical, emotional, developmental or intellectual you may be eligible for enrollment in the Exceptional Family Member Program (EFMP).

The information in this book was compiled to assist you in locating services on Fort Richardson and in the Anchorage area. Additional resources may be available on a national level. If you are interested in these resources, please contact ACS for assistance.

Directory listings are restricted to agencies and organizations offering direct or referral services. While it may be assumed that these agencies and organizations are in good standing, inclusion in this directory cannot be considered an endorsement. It is especially important that families enrolled in TRICARE, who are seeking services which require payment, coordinate with their Primary Care Manager at the Elmendorf Hospital before making arrangements.

For assistance or more information, call the EFMP Coordinator at 384-0225.

WHAT IS THE EXCEPTIONAL FAMILY MEMBER PROGRAM?

The Exceptional Family Member Program (EFMP) is a mandatory enrollment program that is based on public law and DOD mandates. It works with other military and civilian agencies in providing comprehensive and coordinated medical, educational, housing, community support, and personnel services to families with special needs.

Three groups of soldiers with Exceptional Family Members (EFM's) are required to enroll in the program:

- Active Duty Army Personnel
- U.S. Army Reserve (USAR), USAR Active Guard Reserve (AGR), and other USAR soldiers on active duty exceeding 30 days
- Army National Guard AGR personnel serving under the authority of Title 10 of the U.S. Code

A soldier can initiate EFMP enrollment eligibility in several ways. Screening initiation occurs during in, out, and reassignment processing if soldiers indicate that they have or suspect that a family member has a special need. The screening process can also be set in motion by voicing your concerns during routine medical care appointments. All family members must be screened before command sponsorship at a location outside the continental United States (OCONUS).

Early enrollment in the EFMP is the soldier's guarantee that the Army will do its best to match the soldier's grade and specialty with a location that can provide support the special needs of the EFM(s). Soldiers who are enrolled are still subject to worldwide assignment, and just like any other soldier, may be called upon to serve an unaccompanied tour.

Information about enrollment is not given to selection boards. Therefore, it doesn't adversely affect a soldier's selection for promotion.

Soldiers are enrolled permanently in the program unless a change in a member's medical or special education needs warrant case closure or the soldier is separated from the Army. Soldiers are responsible for keeping their EFM's medical and/or special education documentation current. A review is required as the EFM's condition changes or at least every three years, whichever comes first.

Department of Army civilian employees do not enroll in the program. However, they must identify dependent children with special education and medically related service needs each time they process for an assignment to a location outside the United States where family member travel is authorized at Government expense.

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

- Assess, document and code special education and medical needs of EFMs.
- Provide information and assistance needed to involve EFMs with community support services that meet their needs.
- Ensure facility and program accessibility to individuals with disabilities.
- Consider the EFM's special needs, both medical and educational, in the assignment process outside the Continental United States (OCONUS)
- Consider the EFM's medical needs in the stateside assignment process.
- Assign soldiers to an area where the EFM's medical and/or special education needs can be accommodated provided that there is a valid personnel requirement for the soldier's grade and specialty.
- Provide medically related services to eligible Department of Defense Dependents Schools (DoDDS) students with disabilities OCONUS.
- Enable Department of the Army civilians to inform DoDDS of the arrival of dependent children with special education and medically related service needs after they have been selected for a position OCONUS where family member travel is authorized at Government expense.

WHO IS AN EXCEPTIONAL FAMILY MEMBER?

The army defines an EFM as any family member, regardless of age, who has a disability which limits their ability to function on a daily basis and/or requires ongoing counseling, training, education, therapy or treatment.

ENROLLMENT CRITERIA (AR 608-75, Appendix B)

LAWS CONCERNING PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

Key legislation has had a major impact on employment, educational, recreational, and other opportunities for persons with disabilities. This legislation has affected how state, local, and federal governments do business, including those operated by the military.

The following Federal laws and their amendments significantly strengthened the rights of persons with disabilities:

Public Law 93-112, The Rehabilitation Act of 1973: Addresses discrimination against individuals with disabilities. The law has different sections which refer to areas of discrimination:

Section 501: Employment of Handicapped Individuals

Section 502: Architectural and Transportation Board Compliance

Section 503: Employment Under Federal Constraints

Section 504: Non-Discrimination Under Federal Grants

Public Law 94-142, The Education of All Handicapped Children Act (EHA) of 1975: Makes it possible for states and localities to receive Federal funds to assist in the education of children with disabilities. To receive their share of funds, states must ensure:

- ⇒ A free and appropriate education based on the specific needs of the child
- ⇒ An individualized education program (IEP) that includes parents in the decision making process.
- ⇒ Existence of a due process procedure to allow parents to challenge and appeal any decision related to identification, evaluation, and placement of their children.
- ⇒ Education in the least restrictive environment.

Public Law 95-561, The Defense Dependents' Education Act of 1978: DoDDs is required to provide programs designed to meet the special needs of eligible students with disabilities in locations outside the United States.

Public Law 98-199, EHA Amendments of 1983: Expanded incentives for preschool special education programs, early intervention programs, and transition programs.

Public Law 99-457, EHA Amendments of 1986: Lowered the age of eligibility to receive special education services to age three (to be implemented by 1991-1992 school year). This law also established the Handicapped Infants and Toddlers Program (Part H) which provides early intervention services to children birth to their third birthday.

Public Law 101-476, EHA Amendments of 1990: EHA was changed to Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Many discretionary programs were expanded, some were added to include transition programs, programs for youth with serious emotional disturbance, and a information and research program for AD/HD. Services were expanded to include children with autism and traumatic brain injury.

Public Law 102-119, IDEA Amendments of 1991: Expanded services to children 3-5 who experience developmental delays and requires planning for children in Part H programs to transition to preschool programs. Added vision services, assistive technology and services, and transportation to the definition of early intervention services. Required DoD to provide early intervention services to eligible children with disabilities ages birth to third birthday and a free appropriate education and related services for children with disabilities ages 3-21 enrolled in DoD Domestic Dependent Elementary and Secondary Schools Arrangements and in overseas areas.

Public Law 105-17, IDEA Amendments of 1997: Requires additional information on Individual Education Plans (IEP) and regular classroom teacher presence at meetings. Requires participation with accommodations of children with disabilities in state-wide assessments. Gives guidelines on disciplinary action and Behavioral Assessments.

Public Law 98-524, The Vocational Education Act of 1984: Authorizes Federal funds to support vocational education programs. Requires that vocational education be provided for students with disabilities.

Other laws that provide civil rights and service programs:

Public Law 90-480, Architectural Barriers Act of 1968: Requires that certain Federally owned, leased, or funded building and facilities be accessible to individuals with physical disabilities.

Public Law 93-380, The Family Education Rights and Privacy act of 1974: Gives parents of students under the age of 18, and students age 18 and over, the right to examine records kept in the student's personal file.

Public Law 99-372, The Handicapped Children's Protection Act of 1986: Provides for reasonable attorneys fees and costs to parents and guardians who prevail in administrative hearings or court when there is a dispute with a school system concerning their child's right to free appropriate special education and related services.

Public Law 99-401, Temporary Child Care for Handicapped Children and Crisis Nurseries Act of 1986: Part of the larger Children's Justice Act. Title II of this law includes provisions to fund temporary child care for children who have a disability or chronic illness and crisis nurseries for children at risk of abuse or neglect.

Public Law 101-336, The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990: Guarantees equal opportunity for individuals with disabilities I employment, public accommodation, transportation, state and local government services, and telecommunications. It is the most significant Federal law assuring the full civil rights of all individuals with disabilities.

For more information on these laws please contact your Exceptional Family Member Program Manager.
